

INFORMATION ABOUT PhD SUPERVISORS

As a PhD applicant, at the time of application, you must have a faculty member agree to supervise your thesis work if you are admitted to the PhD program. This agreement fosters a close link between a student's research interest and those of the prospective supervisor, which in turn helps to promote the student's success in the doctoral program and its timely completion. To help you select a supervisor:

- Read "Selecting a Supervisor" (PDF available at: <http://bloomberg.nursing.utoronto.ca/prospectives/phd/apdr.htm>)
- Visit our website at <http://bloomberg.nursing.utoronto.ca/staff/AcademicStaff.htm> and read the faculty biographies to identify a faculty member(s) who might be an appropriate match with your research interest.
- Contact the faculty member(s) by email to discuss your research interest and to determine if she/he would be willing to supervise you. In preparation for that discussion, you should become familiar with the faculty member's research by reading a selection of her/his publications; be ready to talk about your own research activities; and be willing to submit any publications you have had in the last five years.
- When you have found a potential match, you will need to have the faculty member sign the PhD Thesis Supervision Form and Funding Policy Acknowledgment Form, which is to be submitted with your application package. You will access this form in the SGS on-line application.

The number of faculty members in the position to take on new PhD students varies year to year depending upon current supervision load, leaves and sabbatical plans. Junior faculty members, working in collaboration with senior faculty members, from time to time agree to supervise doctoral students. Potential PhD supervisors for the 2011/2012 intake are listed below:

Arlene Bierman
Sean Clarke
Cindy-Lee Dennis
Margaret Fitch
Denise Gastaldo
Doris Howell
Michael McGillion

Linda McGillis Hall
Kathy McGilton
Kelly Metcalfe
Carles Muntaner
LaRon Nelson
Sioban Nelson
Monica Parry

Elizabeth Peter
Martine Puts
Louise Rose
Bonnie Stevens
Jennifer Stinson
Robyn Stremmer
Ann Tourangeau

| |
|--|
| If you have difficulty identifying a supervisor, please contact Dr. Ellen Hodnett, PhD Coordinator, for assistance at ellen.hodnett@utoronto.ca |
|--|